Orrstown donation brings laptops to high school students

Students at Fannett-Metal High School will have new laptops thanks to a $10,000 donation by Orrstown Bank.

The bank donated $10,000 to the Fannett-Metal Education Foundation April 12. The foundation supports Fannett-Metal School District in many ways, but its primary focus is upgrading technology in the classrooms.

“Technology is important in today’s classrooms, and these laptops will give our high school students fast access to online resources and software that stretches their skills and creativity,” said Greg Rosenberry, president of the Fannett-Metal Education Foundation.

Over the past 10 years, Orrstown Bank has donated more than $100,000 to the foundation.
