Orrstown Bank announces new hires and promotions

Jason Crider was promoted to associate vice president, branch executive officer of the bank's Chambersburg location at the corner of Norland Avenue and Fifth Avenue. Crider joined Orrstown Bank in 2011 as a management trainee and became a branch manager one year later.

Crider has a bachelor's degree in psychology from Lander University.

He is a member of the board of directors for The Arc of Franklin/Fulton County and the Exchange Club. He's also a graduate of Leadership Franklin County and volunteers for the United Way of Franklin County and Shippensburg High School's "Teach Kids to Save" program.

Jasmin Glancy joined Orrstown Bank as branch executive officer at the bank's location in Camp Hill. She previously served as a branch manager for PNC Bank.

Glancy enjoys the opportunities the banking industry provides for helping people achieve their goals. "Whether you're trying to establish credit or buy your first home, a community bank like ours can play a pivotal role," she said.

Glancy earned a bachelor's degree in Spanish literature and history from Stony Brook University of New York.

Cheryl Umberger joined Orrstown Bank as a mortgage loan officer working in the Lebanon area. Previously, she worked for GMAC Mortgage and Cross Keys Capital. She also has experience in mortgage processing and real estate law.

"I enjoy working in the mortgage industry because it's a privilege to help each client with one of the most exciting and important financial decisions they'll make in their lifetime," said Umberger.

Umberger received a bachelor's degree in health from Clayton College. She also earned certificates in paralegal and theology.

She enjoys volunteering for community organizations and can often be spotted working with the Lebanon Family YMCA, Community of Lebanon Association, and the Humane Society of Lebanon County.

Dan Burkholder joined Orrstown Bank as a mortgage loan officer at the bank's Lancaster location along Rohrerstown Road. He has more than 16 years of mortgage experience and specializes in construction financing.
