Orrstown Bank announces new hires, promotions

Mark Bayer has been promoted to Orrstown Bank's senior vice president for strategic corporate initiatives. He previously served as the bank's director of marketing and project management for seven years. Before joining Orrstown Bank, Bayer was the director of marketing for Community Bank NA in Harrisburg, Pa. Bayer has more than 20 years of experience in the financial services industry.

Bayer has a bachelor's degree in business from Lehigh University with a concentration in marketing. He is also a graduate of the Pennsylvania Banking Association's Advanced School of Banking.

Christina Dudley joined Orrstown Bank as Branch Executive Officer overseeing two of the bank's locations in Perry County. Prior to joining the Orrstown team, she was the assistant branch manager of Member's 1st Federal Credit Union in Duncannon, Pa., for 18 years.

Dudley currently serves on the board of directors for the Perry County Chamber of Commerce. She is also a member of the Perry County Animal Response Team.

Eric Fischer has joined Orrstown Bank as the vice president of small business lending. In this role, he will develop a new program tailored to the needs of small businesses. Fischer previously served as the vice president of commercial lending at Centric Bank in Harrisburg, Pa., and the business finance officer for the Harrisburg Regional Chamber of Commerce & CREDC. He has also worked as a credit analyst, commercial lender, and workout specialist. Earlier in his career, he was an engineer and salesperson for Tyco Electronics.

Fischer says the biggest misperception people have about banking is that it's impersonal. "To me, it's anything but that. It's a very personal relationship and extremely important to people."

He has a master's degree in business administration from St. Mary's College of California and bachelor's degree in metals science and engineering from Penn State University.

He is active in Rotary Club of Susquehanna Township, Junior Achievement, and the Pennsylvania Economic Development Association.

More

Brent Liner joined Orrstown Bank as vice president and trust officer. Previously, he served as a trust officer at Security National Trust Company, law clerk at the law firm of Currin & Currin, and Student Editor of two treatises on North Carolina property law and probate law.

Liner holds a juris doctor degree and a master's in trust and wealth management from Campbell University as well as a bachelor's degree in history from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

He is a member of Theta Chi Fraternity and the North Carolina State Bar.

Andrew Linn joined Orrstown Bank as senior vice president and chief information security officer. He is a certified information security professional. Prior to joining Orrstown, he was the executive director of application security and information management at JP Morgan Chase.

Linn studied computer science at the University of Virginia.

He is a member of the board of directors for the Central Pennsylvania chapter of the Information Systems Security Certification Consortium.

Mike Miller has joined Orrstown Bank as vice president and financial advisor. Based in the bank's Lancaster office, Miller is a chartered special needs consultant and specializes in helping parents of people with development and intellectual disabilities plan for the unique financial considerations of their families.

Previously, Miller was a financial advisor at Mass Mutual of Eastern Pennsylvania. He holds a master's degree in business administration from Temple University and a bachelor's in health services administration from Ithaca College.

As a father of three young children, Miller understands the needs of families first-hand. "Every family's financial future is important to plan for, and I enjoy helping them navigate the critical decisions that affect their lives." he said.

He is a member of the board of directors for Home Life International and is active in his church.

More

Joanna Mullendore joined Orrstown Bank as vice president of compliance and Community Reinvestment Act officer. She has extensive experience in the identification and management of regulatory and enterprise risk.

She is recognized as an International Association of Privacy Professional and a Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialist.

Prior to joining Orrstown, she was a director in compliance and operational risk at Capital One. She also served as a senior associate at KPMG Advisory Services, LLC, in their National Bank Regulatory and Advisory Services practice, was a certified bank examiner with the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, served as the credit compliance officer at SunTrust Leasing Corporation, and was a commercial relationship manager at First National Bank of Maryland.

Mullendore holds both master's in business administration and an undergraduate degree in finance from the University of South Florida. She is also a graduate of Virginia Banker's School of Bank Management.

Judy Myers joined Orrstown Bank as vice president and mortgage officer. With more than 30 years of experience in banking, she was most recently a retail mortgage banker for Susquehanna bank.

She says the best thing about being a mortgage officer is "seeing my customers transition into their new homes smoothly and seamlessly."

Sam Smith joined Orrstown Bank as vice president and regional loan officer for the bank's Lancaster location. Previously, Smith was a vice president and commercial relationship manager with Susquehanna Bank.

He has a bachelor's degree in business administration from Clarion University of Pennsylvania and is a graduate of the Bucknell University School of Commercial Lending.
